From the Director

Sometimes, all it takes is one session.

For 77 years, Buck's Rock has been a staple of growth and comfort for generations of our campers and staff. The world has changed so much around us, and while Buck's Rock has expanded and adapted over the years to reflect the generational differences of the campers that spend their summers here, the space that this place occupies in our hearts and histories has been remarkably constant. Buck's Rock has the power to change us through its culture, freedom, and inclusivity; "Once a Buck's Rocker, always a Buck's Rocker."

Something that has struck me this summer is not necessarily how powerful that experience can be for us (I think we all already know), but just how quickly that feeling can take hold. Walking around a few days into each session, I can see it on the faces of our first year campers—there is truly nothing in life like that first Buck's Rock summer.

In my opening address to start each session, I acknowledged this sentiment in earnest by speaking directly to all of our first time campers: the rest of us envy you. Not because our connection to Buck's Rock has diminished in our sophomore or 30th summers, but because they were about to experience all of this for the first time. For a child to truly have control of their summer and exercise real agency with their decisions and time, and with it, to be given permission to take chances with their time and art—breaching that threshold is both unique and distinctive. And from there, subsequent summers bring invaluable depth and ownership over the experience. There's a reason why so many of us return every year; for long time Buck's Rockers, this is the one space where we genuinely feel like ourselves.

Summers at Buck's Rock are experienced in what many of us call "Buck's Rock time"—a time distortion where days seemingly last a lifetime but the weeks fly by in an instant. At the end of even just one session, a new generation of Buck's Rock belongs to this wonderful space. And regardless of how long their tenure is in our community, that connection remains. A first session camper, on the day before her departure, imparted this bit of prescience that has stuck with me: "I really feel like a different person. I wonder if my friends will recognize me when I get home, and I mean that in the best possible way." Bronwyn, I feel the same way every summer, even after 23 years. And I, too, mean that in the best possible way.

In 2019, I could not be more proud to call Buck's Rock my home and am endlessly thankful of what Buck's Rock has been for so many people. This summer has welcomed another vital group of campers and staff to the Buck's Rock family, a storied group of thousands who have carried their experience at Buck's Rock with them through—well—everything. As always, we may forever owe our foundation to Ernst and Ilse, but we owe the current success and inimitable energy of Buck's Rock to our campers, staff, leadership team, the Salzman family, and our alumni community who all continue to embody their original dream.

At the beginning of the summer, Bob had grand plans for a new shop sign for Pub. Inspired by a sign he saw outside a gift shop while on vacation, he built it at Wood, and back at Pub, a collection of staff members, CITs, and campers designed the color scheme and painted the pieces. The sign now stands completed outside the shop, where it will be installed for years to come.
